

Greek militarism in the age of Syriza

How important is army for a state, both for internal and external affairs? Does the greek state have geostrategic interests? Has the greek state expansion tensions/strategies? How old and stable are these strategies, do they change whenever the government changes?

Examples of greek militarism in the age of Syriza.

(update: Greece's role in the war of Syria.

The involvement of greek army in detention centers)
